A physical injury was the catalyst to a chiropractic career

Hunter Schultz never knew about or believed in chiropractic until his senior year of high school when he suffered a stress fracture in his left foot playing basketball six weeks before the end of the season. The medical doctor took x-rays and put him in a boot and crutches and said he would be out for 6 weeks — no exception. Hunter's dream of playing in the State Tournament was crushed. He remembers lying in bed that night crying and defeated — he was devastated.

As Hunter lay there, he concluded that he could not accept that fate. So, he forgot about his opinion about chiropractors, and went to one for a second opinion. The chiropractor did a thorough consultation, a detailed exam, and took x-rays of his spine. Hunter was blown away by the knowledge he had. The doctor beautifully explained to him how the brain controls the body through the spinal cord system and how his body could heal if only there was no interference to the spinal cord and nerves.

This was new to Hunter, but it immediately made sense. The chiropractor thought he could get back sooner if I followed his plan, so Hunter did. He worked on Hunter almost every day and Hunter could feel his strength coming back into his foot. Hunter also started noticing he was sleeping better, his digestion was better, and he had more energy.

Hunter went back to the medical doctor two weeks later for a follow up, and they were in disbelief at how quickly his foot was healing. He was back playing basketball in 2.5 weeks thanks to chiropractic improving his body's ability to heal itself. Fueled by new hope and excitement, Hunter led his team to the State Tournament down in Madison, WI.

It was a Cinderella story at its finest. Hunter then knew he wanted to become a chiropractor and dedicate his life to giving people their health and hope back, just like that chiropractor gave him. Hunter graduated near the top of his class from Marian University with a bachelor's degree in biology. He then moved to St. Louis, Missouri to Logan College of Chiropractic where he spent 3.5 years, 4,980 credit hours, and graduated in the top percentile of his class.

Dr. Hunter Schultz then opened 920 Chiropractic Health & Injury Care in Howard to give people their health and hope back. The practice sees day old babies all the way up to 80-year-old grandmas and everything in between.

When there is no pressure on the nerves, there is no telling what the body can heal from — only if we give it a chance. They want to see you do extraordinary things here on planet earth and that all starts with a healthy nerve system!

James Madison Memorial Fellowship Foundation Announces 2025 James Madison Fellows

The James Madison Memorial Fellowship Foundation in Alexandria, Virginia, is proud to announce that it has selected 43 James Madison Fellows for its 2025 class in its thirty-third annual fellowship competition. Daniel Hoppe, social studies teacher at Bay Port High School was selected as the 2025 James Madison Fellow for Wisconsin.

Daniel Hoppe

The Foundation awards James Madison Fellowships to outstanding graduate and undergraduate students committed to a career teaching about the development and history of the United States Constitution. The fellowship recognizes promising and distinguished teachers and it aims to strengthen their knowledge of the origins and development of American constitutional government, and thus to expose the nation's secondary school students to accurate knowledge of the nation's Constitutional heritage.

The 43 James Madison Fellows were selected by an independent academic committee in a competition with applicants from each of the 50 states, the District of Columbia, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, and the nation's island and trust territories.

Fellows were chosen for their scholarly achievements and their demonstrated interest in pursuing a course of graduate study leading to a master's degree emphasizing the U.S. Constitution. Fellowships were awarded only in states and territories where resident applicants met the James Madison Fellowship's criteria.

Named in honor of James Madison, the fourth president of the United States who is acknowledged as "the Father of the Constitution and the Bill of Rights," a James Madison Fellowship funds up to $24,000 of each Fellow's course of study towards a master's degree. A Fellow's graduate program must include a concentration of courses on the history and principles of the U.S. Constitution. Recipients are required to teach American history, government, or civics full-time in a secondary school for at least one year for each year of Fellowship support.

The James Madison Memorial Fellowship Foundation is an independent agency of the Executive Branch of the Federal Government and was created by law in 1986. James Madison Fellowships are funded by income generated through a trust fund in the Treasury of the United States and additional private gifts, grants, and endowments.

Is buying a home always the right move?

Submitted by Lee Schram, CEPA®, AAMS™ Financial Advisor Edward Jones

It's widely thought that home ownership is a key to building wealth — but is it? And should you consistently make sacrifices to buy your own home?

Let's start with the first question: Is owning a home essential to building wealth? It would probably be more accurate to say that home ownership can be helpful in building wealth. Building home equity — essentially, the difference between the size of your home's value and what you still owe — is certainly valuable. Plus, the bigger your equity, the less you might have to take out in a new mortgage if you ever want to buy a different home.

Now for the next question: How much should you sacrifice to buy your own home?

This isn't an easy question to answer because buying a home isn't just a financial issue — it's also an emotional one. Many people simply like the feeling of owning a home. If you fall into this category, you might be willing to make many sacrifices to join the ranks of homeowners.

However, if you're relatively young and you are part of a single or even a dual-income household, you may well find that your other priorities are more important than home ownership, at least for the moment. These priorities can include paying off student loans, reducing other debts, paying for child care, meeting health care costs and even saving for retirement. With all these expenses, you might not be able to take on a big mortgage, along with real estate taxes, homeowners' insurance and the inevitable but costly repairs that come with owning a home.

In addition to the danger of becoming "house poor" by paying too high a percentage of your income on your mortgage, you could face another issue by sinking too much money into your home — and that's liquidity. A home is much more illiquid than savings or investment accounts, so if you needed money in a hurry, and most of yours was tied up in your home, you might be in a jam. You could tap into your home equity through a loan or a line of credit, but that's basically taking on even more debt, though these loans and credit lines typically offer lower interest rates than other forms of borrowing.

So, here's the bottom line: You don't need to feel that you are missing out on a chance to build wealth by not buying a home immediately — especially if you would feel extremely stretched by the mortgage payments, given how expensive homes are today. You won't hurt yourself — and, in fact, you'll likely help yourself — by taking care of your most pressing priorities first.

Of course, this doesn't mean that you can never become a homeowner. If you would still like to own a home someday, you could start saving for a down payment, keeping the money in a liquid, low-risk account. Just as importantly, though, you should plan on how owning a home can fit into your budget and how it will affect your cash flow. If you can manage it, you may indeed find that there's no place like home.

Five qualities of a great security system

It is important now more than ever to invest in the security of your Howard-Suamico home or business. Whether you're in Wisconsin or anywhere else in the country, the dangers of home invasion are always present.

The value of a good security system lies in its ability to deter threats to the home or business and to record evidence of crime. A great security system takes this to a whole other level, allowing you to respond to the situation as soon as possible.

A combination of visible and hidden cameras

Research has shown that visible CCTV cameras can reduce the incidence of shoplifting in a retail store by up to 24%. Visible security cameras outside the home can also scare away potential burglars. More persistent thieves may be able to avoid being captured on camera, and some may even go so far as to disable the device. But hidden cameras, combined with other concealed security features, can be used for protection against more skilled criminals.

Make sure to invest in high-definition security cameras. Audio recording is also a plus.

Secure storage

Hiding a safe in a secure spot will make it a lot more difficult for burglars to find and run off with valuables such as jewelry and electronics. And even if a burglar manages to find the safe, they'll still have to crack it. That will take up the time they need to escape, which can either increase the chances of them getting caught or make them give up eventually.

Motion sensors and alarm monitoring

Motion detection can be used to activate lights, cameras, and alarms. Lights suddenly turning on outside a property can send criminals running. Alarms going off can alert homeowners, their neighbors, and local law enforcement to potential intrusions. The trick to fighting off a home or business invasion in WI is quick response times, and motion detection allows for just that.

A motion-activated camera can help you save money on electricity because it only starts recording when potential threats arise. It also eliminates the need to go through hours and hours of footage to find that one piece of evidence.

Smart security

The era of online shopping

brings the highest number of home deliveries per day, and with it, the highest incidence of delivery theft by porch pirates. Smart security can not only help prevent porch piracy but also alert you of threats to your home when you're away, at work, or on vacation.

Most smart security systems have options in place to enable you to contact law enforcement immediately, allowing for a quick response to an invasion of your home or business establishment.

Kim's Tae Kwon Do holds demonstration and fundraiser

Kim's Tae Kwon Do Center, Inc. recently held a customer appreciation dinner that included an action packed demonstration and fundraiser. The demonstration included children and women's self-defense using their voice, attacks, take-downs, and board and brick breaking to music. Students executed great power, technique and timing.

The fundraiser was for a mission in Lima, Peru to help the poor with food, shelter, and medical needs. Donations went to "Daughters of Our Lady of the Pieta". Sister Carla is a member of this order and a leader of the mission.

Sister Carla visits Green Bay on her yearly retreat and attends Master Penny Dugan's Self-Defense Class. Over the years they have developed a great friendship which led to the school raising $3,660.00 through 50/50 raffles, silent auctions and donations.

Celestial Sound celebrates 4th anniversary

Brenda Brayko is thrilled to be celebrating four years doing business as Celestial Sound this August 2025. At one time playing gongs for people was just an idea. Then it became a reality.

Now it is a beautiful and integral part of her life and of hundreds of others in the Green Bay Metro Area and beyond. In October 2024, Brayko relocated her Celestial Sound home studio from near Lambeau Field to Sunset Beach Lane in Suamico.

Brayko says, "These four years I've gone from playing for a few friends a month to about 8 events a month for the public. I also offer services to schools, businesses, organizations, and care-facilities. And I am in recent months, getting individual sound sessions off the ground."

Through it all she is thankful for clients who now range from 14 to 101 years old. "What a joy it is to bring relaxation, restoration, and rejuvenation to your lives. Your continued support of Celestial Sound is so appreciated. I love to hear your stories about how the gongs have brought better mental, physical, spiritual wellness to your lives. And it means the world to me (and helps my business grow) when you come again or bring a friend to share in the amazing experience that is a gong sound bath." Learn about her Customer Appreciation Event on her website, CelestialSoundGB.com.

"It is hard for me to believe, my gongs have now been heard from Hong Kong to Howard. With stops in Verona, Crivitz, Appleton, Green Bay, Suamico, Minneapolis, MN, Sturgeon Bay, the Dells, and more. You may not have known my gong playing journey began while I was living and teaching in Hong Kong!"

In the past few years Brayko has been asked to be a presenter/speaker in order to bring education and therapeutic sound experiences to the community. Brayko commented, "This is something I love to do and I truly value, because everyone deserves to get gonged and understand the benefits of the sound vibrations of gongs." Engagements have included: The Walk to End Alzheimers, Green Bay; The Victory Summit, Green Bay, for Parkinson's Awareness; Guiding Caregivers to Wellness, @ Curative Connections, Green Bay presented by the Brown County Caregivers' Coalition; Brain Awareness Week sponsored by Brain Center in Green Bay; Mental Health and Wellness Fair at Southwest High School in Green Bay; the Green Bay Area Retired Men's Club; and soon, Music and the Brain as co-presenter with The Brain Center.

"I wanted to mark four years in a special way. That's why I have arranged an Anniversary Tour. During August, I will again provide events at many of my partner businesses. You will easily be able to find an event near you. Sometimes there will even be gong and reiki or gong and Peter Hess bowls. Additionally, I will continue to hold a few events on the Bay, either inside or outside of my home studio." Visit Celestial-SoundGB.com to learn more about Celestial Sound.

Skin cancer: A common and avoidable disease

As the sun shines brighter and temperatures rise, so do the risks for skin cancer. With millions of U.S. cases diagnosed each year, it's crucial to learn about the importance of skin health and early detection.

Skin cancer is highly treatable with early detection, which can take place in the comfort of your own home.

"After a shower or when you are changing clothes, look over your skin for new moles or changes in existing moles," says Dr. Matthew Andreoli, Emplify Health by Bellin Family Medicine Physician. "If you notice anything unusual, don't hesitate to consult your primary care provider or dermatologist."

To help individuals perform effective skin checks, Dr. Andreoli recommends the following guidelines:

• Examine your entire body: Use a mirror to check all areas of your skin, including hard-to-see places like your back, scalp, and between your toes. Don't forget to check under your nails and on the soles of your feet.

• Look for the ABCDEs of melanoma: Pay attention to moles that are Asymmetrical, have irregular Borders, show multiple Colors, have a Diameter larger than a pencil eraser, or are Evolving in size, shape or color.

• Keep track of changes: Take photos of your moles and skin over time. This can help you notice any changes that may occur and provide valuable information to your healthcare provider.

Parents or guardians can use these same recommendations to perform skin checks on children who can't perform them effectively on their own.

In addition to regular skin checks, it's important to understand the risks associated with sun exposure. "It takes about 15 minutes for unprotected skin to begin to burn in the sun," adds Dr. Andreoli. "Even short periods of sun exposure can lead to skin damage, which is why it is important to regularly apply sunscreen with at least SPF 30, wear protective clothing and seek shade whenever possible."

For more information on skin cancer prevention and detection, visit American Academy of Dermatology.

If you have concerns related to skin cancer, speak with your primary care provider.
